PAC EMPLOYER INFORMATION

Federal election law requires the FDA to promptly collect and report the employer's name for PAC contributions.

Please note for this employment-status question: If your practice is an incorporated subchapter-S corporation, you technically are an employee of your own corporation. Therefore, you should enter your P.A. entity as the employer's legal name. If you primarily are an employee of another dental practice (the University of Florida, etc.), please note your employer's name. Otherwise, your employment status is self-employed or retired.

FLADPAC dues provide campaign contributions to dental-friendly candidates. FLADPAC-supported legislators have helped pass laws that benefit your practice and patients. FLADPAC Century Club members provide additional financial support for the state campaigns. Florida Dental Political Action Committee (FLADPAC) dues and contributions are not deductible for federal income-tax purposes. Florida law requires political committees to collect the name, mailing address, occupation and employer's name for each individual whose dues or contributions aggregate in excess of $250 in a calendar year (Century Club).
